The Word was in the world and, though the world was made through him, the world did not recognize him. But to all who accepted him he gave the power to become children of God. (John 1:1-18)